Mayfield School is a special school in West Cumbria that caters for 90+ pupils with severe, or complex and multiply learning difficulties.

Our early involvement with System-IT was through their knowledge and expertise of photocopiers. As System-IT has grown over the years, our confidence, reliance and value of them has also grown.

We have consulted and worked alongside Gary Martin and his team in order to reach our goal of providing a total communicative approach for all pupils in school.

Over the past two years Mayfield has invested heavily, upgrading the majority of our ICT hardware, software, and peripherals ensuring that communication achievable through ICT, is accessible for all pupils in school.

The first step in reaching this goal meant an installation of a central server, and then to link the workstations located in school ensuring compatibility of all the variations of software. This was a huge task and involved approximately 40 - 50 standalone PC's. The work was completed on time, in budget and at times outside of the normal working day. System-IT promised and delivered exactly what we required.

The next phase was to set up a wireless network secure enough to allow pupils to independently access the World Wide Web and Mayfield's virtual learning environment without risk or harm. Again liaising with System-IT this goal has also been reached. System-It then sourced and provided 2 x 12 laptops, each set with its own lopsafe taking this "wireless" phase forward even further. The expansion and use of the interactive whiteboards in school followed.

Our working relationship with System-IT continues to grow. The engineers are polite, professional, knowledgeable and reliable. We have one point of contact for any faults or problems that arise. Anything that can't be dealt with remotely, System-IT has an engineer on site at the very latest by the next working day.

Mayfield School continues to look towards System-IT to provide the support, and at times the insight to take our ideas from the drawing board into the normal timetable of the school.

Mayfield School is happy to recommend System-IT to any prospective clients and would welcome any opportunity to showcase their work.
